A. Summary of the case

The case concerns credible and serious allegations of human rights violations affecting 134 parliamentarians from the coalition of the Mesa de la Unidad Democrática (Democratic Unity Roundtable – MUD), against the backdrop of continuous efforts by Venezuela’s executive and judicial authorities to undermine the functioning of the National Assembly elected in 2015. The MUD is opposed to President Nicolas Maduro’s government and obtained a majority of seats in the National Assembly in the parliamentary elections of 6 December 2015.

According to the complainant, the parliamentarians elected in 2015 have been subject to the following:

Almost all parliamentarians listed in the present case have been attacked or otherwise intimidated with impunity by law enforcement officers and/or pro-government officials and supporters during demonstrations, inside parliament and/or at their homes. At least 11 National Assembly members were arrested and released later, reportedly due to politically motivated legal proceedings. In all of these cases, the members were detained without due respect for the constitutional provisions on parliamentary immunity. There are also serious concerns regarding respect for due process and their treatment in detention. People associated with opposition parliamentarians have also been detained and harassed. One parliamentarian is currently under house arrest, 36 are in exile, six have recently returned to Venezuela, 23 are engaged in court proceedings, and six have been barred from holding public office. The passports of at least 13 members of parliament have been confiscated, not been renewed, or cancelled by the authorities, reportedly as a way to exert pressure and to prevent them from travelling abroad to denounce what is happening in Venezuela.

On 31 August 2020, President Nicolas Maduro pardoned 110 members of the political opposition, who had been accused of committing criminal acts. The decision meant the closure of ongoing criminal proceedings against 26 parliamentarians listed in the present case and the release of four of them.

Parliamentary elections took place on 6 December 2020. A new legislative body was formally inaugurated on 5 January 2021. The National Assembly elected in 2015 has, however, decided to continue functioning through a delegated committee “until free, fair and verifiable presidential and parliamentary elections have been held in 2021, an exceptional political event occurs in 2021, or even for an additional annual parliamentary term after 5 January 2021”. The complainant states that persecution, harassment and intimidation of opposition parliamentarians elected in 2015 have increased and that these members of parliament fear for their lives, freedom and physical integrity.

Since 2013, the IPU had been making sustained efforts to send a delegation to Venezuela. In October 2018, the IPU governing bodies decided that the mission would comprise members of both the IPU Committee on the Human Rights of Parliamentarians (CHRP) and the IPU Executive Committee, given the complexity of the political situation and the recurrent finding that individual human rights cases of parliamentarians were part of a broader context of institutional and political crisis. Following receipt of an official invitation from Venezuela, the IPU joint mission travelled to Venezuela from 23 to 27 August 2021. The delegation was able to meet with a large variety of state authorities and stakeholders as well as with more than 60 of the 134 parliamentarians elected in 2015 with cases under examination by the CHRP and to obtain first-hand information on their individual situations.

In preparing for the mission, the IPU delegation had requested facilitation of a visit to Freddy Guevara, opposition member of parliament elected in 2015, who had been arrested on 12 July 2021 – his... whereabouts remaining unknown until 15 July, when he was brought before the court. Having had persistent concerns about the circumstances of his incarceration and right to due process, the IPU was pleased to learn of Mr. Guevara's release on 15 August 2021, one week before the delegation’s arrival in Caracas.

B. Decision

The Governing Council of the Inter-Parliamentary Union,

1. Thanks the Venezuelan authorities for their cooperation during the recent joint mission by the IPU Executive Committee and the CHRP to Venezuela and for facilitating its conduct;

2. Thanks also all persons involved in Venezuelan political life and civil society actors who agreed to meet with the IPU delegation and provide their various points of view; acknowledges that meeting with them allowed the Committee to gain a better understanding of the issues at hand; regrets, nevertheless, that, despite requests in this regard, neither the President of the Republic, nor the Attorney-General, the Minister of People's Power for Foreign Affairs, the Ombudsman, the President of the Supreme Court of Justice or the President of the National Electoral Council met with the delegation, although it appreciates the willingness of the representatives of some of these institutions who attended the scheduled meetings to share very valuable information;

3. Regrets that it was not possible for the delegation to visit Mr. Gilberto Sojo, an opposition parliamentarian elected in 2015 who was in detention at the time of the mission, despite repeated requests to the Venezuelan authorities in this regard; welcomes, nevertheless, Mr. Sojo's release on 3 September 2021, barely a week after the delegation's departure from Caracas; regrets also that the competent Venezuelan authorities were not able to facilitate the delegation's access to the residence of the member of parliament elected in 2015, Mr. Juan Requesens, who is under house arrest, despite numerous requests;

4. Is deeply concerned by detailed information received by the IPU delegation about acts of physical violence against parliamentarians, disproportionately targeting women parliamentarians merely for being women, during public demonstrations over the past years; and recalls in this regard that sexism and gender-based violence against women parliamentarians undermine their dignity, create an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment and perpetuate gender inequality and stereotypes;

5. Notes with great concern that, according to information received by the IPU delegation, political dissidents, including opposition parliamentarians, are arrested and released recurrently as a means used by state forces to pressure the opposition, particularly considering that it is common for the whereabouts of detainees to remain unknown for several hours or even days before appearing in court or being released;

6. Denounces, once again, the extensive repression to which the authorities and their supporters have resorted over the past few years against opposition parliamentarians because of their political opinions, as attested by the continuous extremely serious incidents of ill-treatment, harassment, threats and stigmatization carried out by state agents, paramilitary groups and violent groups of government supporters in a climate of impunity; strongly denounces the multiple steps taken by the executive and judicial authorities over the course of the 2016–2021 legislature to undermine the integrity and independence of the National Assembly; and reiterates that this situation taken as a whole amounts to a clear attempt to thwart the effective exercise of the will of the people as expressed in the election results of December 2015;

7. Reiterates its view that the harassment of opposition parliamentarians elected in 2015 is a direct consequence of the prominent role they have played as outspoken opponents of President Maduro's government and as members of the opposition-led National Assembly elected in 2015; urges the authorities once again to put an immediate end to all forms of persecution against opposition parliamentarians elected in 2015, to ensure that all relevant state authorities respect their human rights, and to fully investigate and establish accountability for reported violations of their rights; requests the Venezuelan authorities to provide official information on any relevant developments in this regard and on any action taken to this end;
8. Remains deeply concerned about the findings of the mission reports of the United Nations Human Rights Council Independent International Fact-Finding mission on Venezuela, published in September 2020 and September 2021, which give further weight to the accusations of political repression and the responsibility of the State at the highest level, also reinforced by the recent announcement of the opening of an investigation into the situation in Venezuela by the International Criminal Court; and expresses its firm hope, once again, that the State of Venezuela, with the support of the international community, will be able to address the violations and crimes documented in these reports;

9. Reaffirms its view, reinforced by the findings of the IPU mission, that the issues in the cases at hand are part of the larger political crisis in Venezuela, which can only be solved through political dialogue and by the Venezuelans themselves; considers that the current process of dialogue is a golden opportunity to reach broad consensus across the political spectrum on how to move forward; trusts in this regard that the government representatives will soon decide to resume the talks in Mexico; reaffirms the IPU's readiness to assist in any efforts aimed at strengthening democracy in Venezuela; and requests the relevant authorities to provide further information on how this assistance can best be provided;

10. Reiterates its calls on all IPU Member Parliaments, IPU permanent observers, parliamentary assemblies, in particular regional parliamentary bodies such as Parlatino, Parlamericas and Parlasur, as well as relevant human rights organizations, to take concrete actions in support of the urgent resolution of the individual cases at hand and the political crisis in Venezuela in a manner consistent with democratic and human rights values; and hopes to be able to rely on the assistance of all relevant regional and international organizations;

11. Requests the Secretary General to convey this decision to the relevant Venezuelan authorities, including the President of the 2020 National Assembly, the offices of the Public Prosecutor and Ombudsperson, the National Council on Human Rights, as well as to the complainant and any third party likely to be in a position to supply relevant information;

12. Requests the Committee to continue examining this case and to report back to it in due course.
