The COVID-19 pandemic brought to a situation when the world should re-examine various dimensions of our life starting from democracy and human rights protection, to social affairs and economy. We - the global network of parliamentarians should strive to create platforms, where all the stakeholders - basically the whole humankind can get engaged in a dialogue to agree on the “New order of the globe”.

Parliamentarians should not only foster dialogue, but also be its leading force. We should be an example for our societies by showing that it’s not the right time to concentrate on our differences and talk about our similarities in order to forge the new sense of purpose. Only joint efforts within a peaceful inclusive environment can help neutralize the negative consequences of this crisis and create new opportunities for all.