A. Summary of the case

The case concerns credible and serious allegations of human rights violations affecting 134 parliamentarians from the coalition of the Mesa de la Unidad Democrática (Democratic Unity Roundtable – MUD), against the backdrop of continuous efforts by Venezuela’s executive and judicial authorities to undermine the functioning of the National Assembly elected in 2015. The MUD is opposed to President Nicolas Maduro’s government and obtained a majority of seats in the National Assembly in the parliamentary elections of 6 December 2015.

According to the complainant, the parliamentarians elected in 2015 have been subject to the following:

Almost all parliamentarians listed in the present case have been attacked or otherwise intimidated with impunity by law enforcement officers and/or pro-government officials and supporters during demonstrations, inside parliament and/or at their homes. At least 11 National Assembly members were arrested and released later, reportedly due to politically motivated legal proceedings against them. All were detained without due respect for the constitutional provisions on parliamentary immunity. There are also serious concerns regarding respect for due process and their treatment in detention. People associated with opposition parliamentarians have also been detained and harassed. One parliamentarian is currently under house arrest, 36 are in exile, six have recently returned to Venezuela, 23 are engaged in court proceedings, and six have been barred from holding public office. The passports of at least 13 members of parliament have been confiscated, not been renewed, or cancelled by the authorities, reportedly as a way to exert pressure and to prevent them from travelling abroad to report what is happening in Venezuela.

On 31 August 2020, President Nicolas Maduro pardoned 110 members of the political opposition who had been accused of committing criminal acts. The decision meant the closure of ongoing criminal proceedings against 26 parliamentarians listed in the present case and the release of four of them.

Fresh parliamentary elections took place on 6 December 2020. A new legislative body was formally inaugurated on 5 January 2021. The National Assembly elected in 2015, however, decided to continue functioning through a delegated committee “until free, fair and verifiable presidential and parliamentary elections have been held in 2021, or until an exceptional political event occurs in 2021, or even for an additional annual parliamentary term after 5 January 2021”. In December 2021, the 2015 National Assembly decided to renew its parliamentary mandate and to continue its work, led by Mr. Juan Guaidó.

A joint mission, composed of members of both the IPU Committee on the Human Rights of Parliamentarians (CHRP) and the IPU Executive Committee, went to Venezuela from 23 to 27 August 2021. The delegation was able to meet with a large variety of state authorities and stakeholders as well as with more than 60 of the 134 parliamentarians elected in 2015 with cases under examination by the CHRP, thereby obtaining first-hand information on their individual situations.

In January and February 2022, the complainant stated that acts of persecution, harassment and intimidation, including the possible opening of new court proceedings, against opposition parliamentarians elected in 2015 have increased, and that these members of parliament all fear for their freedom and physical integrity.

1 For the purposes of this decision, the term “opposition” relates to members of parliament from political groups or parties that have limited decision-making power and are opposed to the ruling power.
B. Decision

The Governing Council of the Inter-Parliamentary Union

1. Notes with satisfaction that President Maduro’s government has announced the imminent resumption of dialogue with representatives of the opposition; reaffirms in this regard that the issues involved are part of the broader political crisis in Venezuela, which can be resolved through inclusive political dialogue and by the Venezuelans themselves; firmly hopes that the talks will be resumed soon and will allow the various national stakeholders to work together to bring about a new social pact through participatory and non-violent means, without foreign interference and in compliance with the State’s international human rights commitments; reaffirms the IPU’s readiness to provide support for any effort to strengthen democracy in Venezuela; and calls on the relevant authorities to provide further information on how best to provide such assistance;

2. Reaffirms that the harassment of opposition parliamentarians elected in 2015 is a direct consequence of the prominent role they played as outspoken opponents of President Maduro’s government and as members of the opposition-led National Assembly elected in 2015; urges the authorities, once again, to put an immediate end to all forms of persecution against the opposition parliamentarians elected in 2015, to ensure that all relevant state authorities respect their human rights, and to thoroughly investigate and establish accountability for reported violations of their rights; and calls on the Venezuelan authorities to provide official information on any relevant new developments in this regard and on any steps taken to this end;

3. Remains deeply concerned about the findings of the successive mission reports of the United Nations Human Rights Council Independent International Fact-Finding mission on Venezuela, which give further weight to the accusations of political repression and the responsibility of the State at the highest level, such accusations being further reinforced by the opening of an investigation into the situation in Venezuela by the International Criminal Court; and expresses the firm hope, once again, that the State of Venezuela, with the support of the international community, will be able to address the violations and crimes documented in these reports;

4. Reiterates its calls on all IPU Member Parliaments, IPU permanent observers and relevant human rights organizations to take concrete actions, within their respective mandates, in support of the urgent resolution of the individual cases at hand and the political crisis in Venezuela in a manner consistent with democratic and human rights values;

5. Requests the Secretary General to convey this decision to the relevant Venezuelan institutions, the complainant and any third party likely to be in a position to supply relevant information;

6. Requests the Committee to continue examining this case and to report back to it in due course.

Decision adopted unanimously by the IPU Governing Council at its 200th session (Dhaka, 5 April 2017)

The Governing Council of the Inter-Parliamentary Union,

Referring to the existing cases under file name VEN/10-23, which concern allegations of human rights violations affecting members from the coalition of the former opposition, the Democratic Unity Round Table (MUD), in the previous Venezuelan legislature, and the decision adopted on their cases by the Governing Council at its 199th session (October 2016); noting that of these members, Mr. Pilieri, Mr. Sánchez, Mr. Alemán, Mr. Blanco, Mr. Borges, Ms. Bracho, Mr. García and Mr. Dávila were re-elected in the parliamentary elections of 6 December 2015, in which the MUD obtained a majority of seats; referring also to the existing cases under file name VEN/24-29, which concern parliamentarians from the MUD who were elected for the first time in 2015,

Having before it the new cases of Mr. Gilber Caro, Mr. Eudoro Gonzalez and Mr. Luis Florido, who were elected in 2015, which have been examined by the Committee on the Human Rights of Parliamentarians pursuant to the Procedure for the examination and treatment of complaints (Annex I of the Revised Rules and Practices),
Considering the information regularly provided by the complainant and by parliamentarians belonging to the MUD and during the hearing with the Committee on 3 April 2017,

Considering the letter of 12 March 2017 from Mr. Darío Vivas Velazco, member of the Venezuelan National Assembly and Coordinator of the Venezuelan parliamentary group Bloque de la Patria in the Latin American Parliament, and the information he provided at the hearing with the Committee on 3 April 2017; also considering the multiple contacts with the IPU Secretary General and the IPU Secretariat have had with the Venezuelan Permanent Mission to the United Nations in Geneva,

Recalling the following information on file with regard to the previous cases:

- Mr. Pilieri, Mr. Sánchez, Mr. Alemán and Mr. Blanco
  - The four men have been exercising their parliamentary mandate, but remain subject to criminal proceedings. According to the complainant, the proceedings are baseless, which the authorities deny. They were instigated before their election to the National Assembly in September 2010, at which time Mr. Pilieri and Mr. Sánchez were detained. They were released in February and December 2011, respectively;

- Mr. Richard Mardo
  - On 5 February 2013, Mr. Diosdado Cabello, then Speaker of the National Assembly, reportedly displayed, in the course of an ordinary session, public documents and cheques to support the hypothesis that Mr. Mardo had benefited from third-party donations, arguing that this amounted to illicit enrichment. The complainant affirms that what the Speaker displayed were falsified cheques and forged receipts;
  - On 12 March 2013, the Prosecutor General’s Office formally requested the Supreme Court to authorize proceedings against Mr. Mardo on charges of tax fraud and money laundering, following accusations that were levelled against him by the then Speaker of the National Assembly which, according to the complainant, were based on falsified cheques and forged receipts. According to the authorities, Mr. Mardo was officially charged on 25 June 2014;
  - There is no information on file to show that the authorities have advanced with the criminal proceedings;

- Ms. María Mercedes Aranguren
  - On 12 November 2013, the National Assembly lifted Ms. Aranguren's parliamentary immunity so as to allow charges of corruption and criminal association to be filed in court. The complainant affirms that the case against Ms. Aranguren is not only baseless, but had been dormant since 2008 and was only reactivated in 2013 in order to pass the enabling legislation. The authorities stated that, on 10 December 2014, the court in charge of the case ordered her arrest;
  - There is no information on file to show that the authorities have advanced with the criminal proceedings;

- Ms. María Corina Machado
  - On 24 March 2014, the Speaker of the National Assembly announced, without any discussion in plenary, that Ms. Machado had been stripped of her mandate after the Government of Panama had accredited her as an alternate representative at the March 2014 meeting of the Permanent Council of the Organization of American States (OAS) in Washington, DC, so as to allow her to present her account of the situation in Venezuela;
  - Two criminal investigations were subsequently initiated against her. The complainant states that the investigations relate to allegations that she was accused of involvement in an alleged plot to carry out a coup d’état and assassinations and of incitement to violence. Ms. Machado has denied the accusations and charges against her. On 3 December 2014, formal charges were reportedly brought by the Prosecutor’s Office. No information is on file with regard to the current status of proceedings;
- On 14 July 2015, the Comptroller General of the Republic fined Ms. Machado and suspended her from her duties for 12 months, thereby blocking her intention to stand in the parliamentary elections of December 2015 for a further term as a member of the National Assembly. According to the complainant, the suspension was totally disproportionate and unconstitutional and a violation of human rights;

- Mr. Juan Carlos Caldera

  - On 26 November 2014, the Supreme Court authorized Mr. Caldera’s prosecution, referring to article 380 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The complainant claims that, contrary to the Court’s ruling, the acts for which Mr. Caldera is to be investigated are not crimes. The complainant states that an illegal audio recording emerged showing several persons plotting to frame Mr. Caldera by making a lawful act – the receipt of private funds for a mayoral election campaign – appear criminal in the eyes of the public. The complainant points out that, in Venezuela, public funding of political parties and election campaigns is prohibited;

- Mr. Ismael García

  - In November 2014, the Supreme Court upheld a request for pretrial proceedings in the case brought against Mr. García by General Carvajal, who claims to have been defamed and is currently being held in Aruba at the request of the United States Government on accusations of drug trafficking. The complainant points out that Mr. García had formally requested the Prosecutor General’s Office to investigate General Carvajal for his alleged role in criminal activity. According to the complainant, none of these facts was considered by the Supreme Court before upholding the request;

- Ms. Nirma Guarulla, Mr. Julio Ygarza and Mr. Romel Guzamana

  - On 30 December 2015, the Electoral Chamber of the Supreme Court ordered the suspension of a number of acts of proclamation issued by the Electoral Council for the State of Amazonas. The judgement related to allegations of fraud during the election of Ms. Guarulla, Mr. Ygarza and Mr. Guzamana (all from the coalition of the former opposition, the MUD) and Mr. Miguel Tadeo (from the PSUV). The suspension has the effect of reducing the two-thirds majority that the “opposition”, now majority, would have had in the National Assembly to take certain important decisions, and is therefore of particular significance;

  - On 5 January 2016, the National Assembly decided to disregard this judgement and that the deputies from Amazonas should take their seats, although Mr. Tadeo from the PSUV chose to respect the court order. On 11 January 2016, the Supreme Court determined that any decision taken by the National Assembly would be invalid as long as the members of parliament whom the Court had suspended remained in their seats. The MUD coalition parties in parliament first decided to continue legislating in defiance of the court ruling but, on 13 January 2016, the suspended members requested to leave the legislature “without losing their status of members of parliament and in expectation of more favourable conditions in resuming their seats”;

  - On 21 July 2016, the suspended members of parliament from the State of Amazonas decided to retake their seats at the National Assembly, despite the Supreme Court’s earlier decision to suspend their election;

  - On 1 August 2016, the Supreme Court declared again that any decision taken by the National Assembly would be invalid as long as the members of parliament remained in their seats, and declared that the suspended members of parliament and the opposition (new majority) members of parliament were in contempt of court, and therefore could be liable to criminal prosecution;

  - As a result of this continued contempt, since August 2016 the President of Venezuela has deprived the National Assembly of its funds to function, including salaries for its members and monies needed to cover its running costs;

  - The complainant has repeatedly reiterated concerns about the lack of independence of the Supreme Court. In particular, 13 of its judges and 21 substitute judges of the Court, some of whom had close affinity with, if not direct ties to, the governing party, were elected hastily by the outgoing National Assembly within one month after the 6 December 2015 elections had eliminated the governing party’s majority in the newly elected National Assembly, which would take office on 5 January 2016;

- Mr. Rosmit Mantilla, Mr. Enzo Prieto and Mr. Gilberto Sojo
  - Mr. Mantilla, Mr. Prieto and Mr. Sojo, elected as alternate members of parliament in the parliamentary elections of 6 December 2015, have been deprived of their liberty since 2014 in connection with ongoing legal proceedings, according to the complainant for political reasons, and have therefore been unable to exercise their parliamentary mandate;
  - Mr. Mantilla was released on 17 November 2016 and took office as a parliamentarian on 22 November 2016. The legal case against him, however, continues and has reached the trial stage and Mr. Mantilla has to report regularly to the authorities. Mr. Sojo was released on 13 December 2016 and subsequently sworn in as a member of parliament. The legal case against him is, however, still pending;

- The new case of Mr. Gilbert Caro
  - The complainant states that, on 11 January 2017, officers from the Bolivarian Intelligence Service (SEBIN) arbitrarily arrested and detained Mr. Caro, who is still being held at the detention centre “26 de julio” in San Juan de los Moros in Guárico State. The complainant claims that Mr. Caro is to be tried by a military court, which contravenes articles 28, 49 and 261 of the Venezuelan Constitution, and that he has not been presented in due time before a judge;

- The new cases of Mr. Luis Florido and Mr. Eudoro González and new developments concerning Mr. William Dávila
  - Mr. Florido, President of the National Assembly’s Committee on Foreign Relations, Sovereignty and Integration, returned to Venezuela on 27 January 2017 after carrying out parliamentary duties abroad. Upon his return, immigration officers confiscated his passport, informing him that the document had been cancelled owing to a reported official complaint of theft of the said document. On 6 February 2017, Mr. Florido was ready to travel abroad, using this time his ID card, which suffices for travel between Mercosur Member States, when he was told that he was subject to an order prohibiting him from leaving the country. On 7 February 2017, Mr. Dávila who was about to travel abroad, was likewise informed by immigration officers that his passport had been reported as stolen and therefore cancelled. Similarly, on 21 March 2017, Mr. González returned to Venezuela when immigration officers told him that his passport had been cancelled owing to a reported official complaint of theft of the said document;
  - In all three cases, the complainant affirms that no official complaint about the theft of the passports was ever made. It considers that the measures against the three parliamentarians are arbitrary and have no basis in law, being merely meant to harass and silence parliamentarians wishing to participate in international forums to voice their criticism of the political situation in Venezuela,

Recalling that a delegation of the Committee on the Human Rights of Parliamentarians was due to travel to Venezuela in June 2013 to address, among other things, the issues that had by then arisen in the cases, but that the mission was postponed at the last minute in order to allow the parliamentary authorities more time to organize the meetings requested,

Taking into account the numerous letters from the current Speaker of the National Assembly and his immediate predecessor, including his letter of 17 October 2016, in which he expressed full support for the mission by the Committee and underscored the need for it to take place as soon as possible, all the more so in light of his concerns about increased encroachment by the executive and judicial authorities on the powers of the National Assembly,

Considering that the mission, which was due to travel to Venezuela from 20 to 22 March 2017, was cancelled at the last minute after receiving the letter addressed to the IPU Secretary General by Mr. Darío Vivas Velazco, member of the Venezuelan National Assembly and Coordinator of the Venezuelan parliamentary group Bloque de la Patria in the Latin American Parliament, and the refusal to provide a visa to the one member of the mission requiring it; \textit{considering also} that in his letter, Mr. Darío Vivas states that “the Inter-Parliamentary Union has been welcomed in our country on previous occasions, including during His Excellency’s successful visit in 2016. However, the National Assembly is currently acting outside the bounds of its constitutional functions; thus, it is not authorized to represent the Legislative Power before international organizations such as the Inter-Parliamentary Union” and that for the \textit{Bloque de la Patria} therefore “the legal, political and practical conditions required for the proper conduct of a visit by the IPU Committee on the Human Rights of Parliamentarians cannot be met as they might have been in different circumstances”,

\textit{Recalling} the official visit to Venezuela by the Secretary General in late July 2016, during which he met, amongst others, with the President of Venezuela, the Speaker of the National Assembly, the Ombudsman and parliamentarians from majority and opposition parties, and that his visit laid the groundwork for the organization of the planned mission by the Committee; \textit{further recalling} the report by the Secretary General on his mission to the Committee in October 2016; and \textit{considering} his report to the Committee at its current session,

\textit{Recalling} that from May 2016 to February 2017 efforts were made, with mediation by the Secretary General of UNASUR, the former Prime Minister of Spain and the former Presidents of the Dominican Republic and Panama, and later the Vatican, to bring the two political sides together, which led to official plenary meetings on 30 October 2016 and 11 and 12 November 2016 to decide on the issues for the political dialogue. However, the dialogue stalled subsequently, in light of disagreements about what had been concluded thus far and how to proceed,

\textit{Considering} that, on 29 March 2017, the Supreme Court decided to assume the powers of the National Assembly temporarily, considering that the latter remained in contempt of its rulings. According to Mr. Darío Vivas, following an urgent meeting of the National Council of Defence, the Supreme Court swiftly reversed its decision. The text of this decision appears to be unavailable as of yet,

\begin{enumerate}
    \item \textit{Deeply} regrets that, despite the agreement of the Speaker of the National Assembly, the governing party did not welcome the mission at this point in time and that the visa was refused to one of its members, all the more so as it remains convinced that in the cases at hand, against the backdrop of the current political crisis, such a mission could help address the concerns and questions that have arisen thus far; \textit{hopes therefore} that the mission can still take place soon;

    \item \textit{Is deeply concerned} about the continued suspension of four members of the National Assembly; \textit{reaffirms} that this situation not only directly affects their individual political rights, but also deprives their constituencies of representation in parliament; \textit{fails to understand} why these parliamentarians should not be allowed to exercise their parliamentary mandate, in particular to attend parliamentary sessions, as this would be in line with the fundamental principle of presumption of innocence; \textit{fails to understand also} how, on a matter of such importance, it is possible that the Supreme Court has not yet issued a ruling, sixteen months after the elections; \textit{calls on} the Supreme Court to do so as a matter of urgency, with due consideration of all the facts and with full respect for the right to defence of those concerned;

    \item \textit{Considers} that the subsequent rulings by the Supreme Court declaring all decisions by the National Assembly to be null and void for as long as the parliamentarians remain involved in the work of parliament to be grossly excessive;

    \item \textit{Is deeply concerned} that, as a result of this situation, the National Assembly as a whole and its members have been deprived of the financial means to which they are entitled to carry out their work, thereby seriously undermining the effectiveness of parliament; \textit{urges} the relevant authorities to remedy this situation speedily; \textit{stresses} at the same time the need for the various branches of State to act within their constitutionally prescribed mandate and prerogatives;
\end{enumerate}
5. Recognizes that the issue relating to the suspension of the four members of the National Assembly is part of a larger political crisis in Venezuela, which can only be solved through political dialogue; calls on both sides to act in good faith and to commit fully to restarting the political dialogue with the assistance of the official mediators; reaffirms that the IPU stands ready to assist with these mediation efforts; and wishes to receive further official information about how this assistance can best be provided;

6. Is pleased that Mr. Mantilla and Mr. Sojo were released; wishes to know more about the prospect of Mr. Prieto being released soon and thus being allowed to carry out his parliamentary mandate; wishes to have full details of the legal grounds and facts that underpin the accusations against him and the stage reached in the legal proceedings;

7. Recalls its previous questions, as well as earlier preliminary concerns, regarding the cases of the other current and former parliamentarians whose cases were already under examination by the Committee before the elections of December 2015, and which relate primarily to the legal and factual justifications for the legal proceedings brought against them individually and for the lifting of their parliamentary immunity;

8. Is deeply concerned that the passports of Mr. González, Mr. Flores and Mr. Dávila were cancelled, apparently without any serious justification; cannot but conclude that this supports the allegations that the cancellation is in fact a reprisal for their political and parliamentary work, and is meant to prevent them from speaking about the situation in Venezuela in international forums; urges the relevant authorities to return the passports as a matter of urgency and to prevent these incidents from recurring;

9. Notes the allegations regarding Mr. Caro, in particular the alleged lack of respect for his parliamentary immunity and the possibility that he will be tried by a military court; wishes to receive official information on these points and on the exact accusations against him and the facts underpinning them;

10. Requests the Secretary General to convey this decision to the competent authorities, the complainants and any third party likely to be in a position to supply relevant information;

11. Requests the Committee to continue examining this case and to report back to it in due course.
